The Museum of Berkshire Aviation

A fascinating collection of aircraft and photographs recalling Berkshire's Aviation heritage

The Museum of Berkshire Aviation

- Visit the Handley Page Herald
- Climb aboard the Mini-link Trainer
- Gaze in wonder at the Fairey Jet Gyrodyne
- See the Miles Martinet and Miles Student under restoration
- Photograph the Fairey Gannet

The museum welcomes group visits and runs an active educational programme for schools, linked to the National Curriculum requirements, demonstrating the development of aviation techniques. Special arrangements made for school parties and other groups throughout the year (not limited to normal opening hours) please phone 0118 944 8089 for further details.

Monthly lectures are held on the first Tuesday of the month at the Museum on a wide range of aviation subjects. For further info contact 0118 9666142 or museumberksav@gmail.com. We also have a Miles Martinet under restoration and a recently completed Miles Student.

Berkshire's aviation heritage on show

Berkshire's dynamic contribution to aviation history is graphically re-captured at the Woodley museum. Run as a charitable trust, the museum is at the historic site of Woodley airfield, near Reading – once the centre of a thriving aircraft industry. Miles and Handley Page aircraft built at Woodley are being reconstructed and exhibited along with a fascinating pictorial record and priceless archives.

Large exhibits range from a Handley Page Herald, Miles Magister and Fairey Gyrodyne, to the wind tunnel model, for what could have been the first-ever supersonic aircraft.

- ✎ Fairey Gannet with half-scale Bleriot XI Monoplane to celebrate 100 yrs of flying from Woodley. Also interior view... with recently restored Miles Magister housed in the new extension
