An Historic Artists' Estate on Fort Lauderdale Beach

Take a wonderful trip through time at beautiful, historic Bonnet House Museum & Gardens.

Be magically transported to the beginning of the 20th Century, and the days of gracious living, charm and whimsy
when Florida was one of the nation's last frontier outposts.

The House

Bartlett & Birch families' Winter Retreat

Designed and built by Frederic Clay Bartlett, Bonnet House is one of the few complete homes and studios of two American artists open to the public. Throughout the main house you will see murals on the ceilings, faux marble on the walls and floors, and balustrades that are really paintings. Fish sculptures rise in the air, and shells have their own museum. The Bartletts' eclectic collections are also on display, everything from antique china to turn-of-the-century carousel animals.

The Art

Whimsical and Unconventional

Walk into the Bartletts' studio and there Mr. Bartlett's palette, paints and an unfinished work at his easel are on display. Northern light spills into the room from a two-story window. On the walls hang numerous examples of his work, including oil paintings and murals. In the gallery Mrs. Bartlett's natural flair for the creative is depicted in her portraits of friends, family and her still lifes.

The Gardens

Tropical Tranquility

Nestled among miles of beachfront development are 35 acres of a barrier island ecosystem that make up the Bonnet House estate. Here you can walk where ancient Tequesta Indians, early European settlers, and shipwrecked sailors once roamed. See one of the finest orchid collections in the continental U.S., and catch a glimpse of playful monkeys, majestic swans, wading birds and an occasional manatee.
