LAKE ARGYLE

THE KIMBERLEY WA AND KATHERINE GORGE NT

ABOUT THE AREA

Western Australia's Kimberley Region is in the far north of the state and indigenous people have inhabited its enormous and rugged country for over 50,000 years. The climate is monsoonal and defines the landscape, which is astonishingly beautiful. The Kimberley covers an expanse of nearly 423,000 square kilometres (three times the size of England) with a population of only 33,000 people. A few hundred kilometres over the border in the Northern Territory is Katherine Gorge or Nitmiluk. Views from the air are spectacular and helicopters are the perfect aerial platform to capture close up views of the landscape. On some flights we land and shut the helicopter down to fish in wild rivers or swim in secret springs.
