OLVESTON

HISTORIC HOME

42 ROYAL TERRACE
DUNEDIN

Olveston was built for Dunedin businessman, collector and philanthropist David Theomin and was the family home from 1906-1966.

With no heirs to inherit, Olveston and the original contents were then gifted to the City of Dunedin.

Furnished with the Theomin's vast collection of fine artworks, furniture and artefacts purchased from all around the world, Olveston is a time capsule as little has changed inside the house since it was occupied as a family home.
