ARROWTOWN GOLD

The discovery of Gold in 1862 just above present day Arrowtown sparked one of richest gold rushes in New Zealand history. William Fox and John O'Callaghan led a small team of miners, who managed to keep the location of their find secret for several weeks enabling them to recover some 230 lbs of gold. Fox eventually journeyed to purchase food supplies but made the mistake of paying for goods with gold. The 'fox hunt' begun and the gold rush soon followed to the Arrow River with 7000 diggers seeking a lucky strike.
