

AT SORREL SKY GALLERY,
we believe art matters.

With contemporary and traditional Western and Native American fine art and jewelry, photography, sculpture, and more, we connect you to over 90 artists. We look forward to helping you find the perfect gift, addition to your collection, or that "just because it makes you happy" piece.

Established in 2002, in Durango, Colorado, Sorrel Sky Gallery establishes lasting connections between the artists we represent and new or experienced art enthusiasts. Always striving to exceed expectations with personalized client services, our second location opened in Santa Fe, New Mexico in 2014. Both galleries are housed in buildings rich in local history and culture, strengthening our ties to these communities. With a lifetime immersed in the art world, over 30 years in the art business, plans for a third location, and an easy-to-use website for viewing and acquisition, owner Shanan Campbell leads a team of art advisors that mirror her passion and commitment. We represent several renowned artists including Kevin Red Star, Star Liana York, Ben Nighthorse, David Yarrow, Edward Aldrich, Greg Overton, and more. We look forward to helping you create an art collection that speaks to you and for you.

“Art is a natural part of who we are as human beings. It communicates to us, and at times for us, expressing thoughts and emotions. Surrounding yourself with art that adds to your voice, to your story, should be a rewarding journey. Let us help you make it so.”
